Sheila and I were buddies when we were kids. We used to get into all kinds of mischief when we got together every Sunday at our grandparents' house for dinner. I remember us building bike paths in the woods next to Sheila's house. She taught me how to drive--she would slide over and let me take the wheel when we were driving from her house to our grandparents and back. There was one time when we found some baby food jars next to her house and we just had to find out what was in them so we took knives and started stabbing holes in the top. I missed and stabbed my hand. We were afraid to tell anyone because we thought we would get in trouble. We finally told her dad (my Uncle Farris) and he put a bandaid on it. I still have the scar. Great times and good memories. All my love to Sheila's family.
